South-Carolina GAZETTE.

From THURSDAY August 21st, to THURSDAY August 28th, 1755.

St. JOHN's, ANTIGUA, July 12.

Extract of a letter from an Aide de camp to major-general Shirley's regiment, at Cape Neddle, on Nod-dle's-Island, near Boston, dated June 7th 1755.

"WE have been cramped here about a month, and are to march on monday next. Our regiment is very near compleat, the lowest of our companies are ninety-four, rank and file. Our rout from Boston to fort Niagara, on lake Ontario, will be as follows. To Providence by land 45 miles; thence by water to New-York, 200 miles; thence to Albany by water, 150 miles; thence to Schenectady, by land, 16 miles; thence to fort Hunter, the first Indian caſtle, up ſtream, 24 miles;——[Here begins the country of the ſix nations]—from fort Hunter to the German-Flats, up ſtream, 51 miles,—carrying-place half a mile; [This is a part of the country very well ſettled by Germans] thence to the head of Mohawk-river, up ſtream, about 50 miles,—carrying-place to Wood's creek, 6 miles; thro' Wood's creek, narrow river with ſtream, 40 miles; thence through Oneidas lake, 40 miles; thence down Onondago river, to our fort Oſwego, 40 miles; thence to fort Niagara on the South-Weſt ſide of lake Ontario, 150 miles. Oppoſite to Oſwego, croſs lake Ontario about 20 leagues, is a French fort, called Frontiniac. Theſe two laſt mentioned places the Indians, during laſt war, inſiſted ſhould not be attacked by either party, as they are the two moſt conſiderable marts for their furrs. Through almoſt the whole of this country we are to go in battoes, which contain ſix [illegible] baggage and proviſions, up and down rivers ſo narrow, as with difficulty to admit 2 of thoſe ſmall boats a-breaſt, flanked on each ſide by thick woods, ſo that if we have not the ſix nations in our intereſt, they may pick us off at pleaſure.

Every thing here goes through the hands of generals Braddock and Shirley; the former came out with a much more extenſive power, than the duke of Cumberland ever had in Flanders. He has the diſpoſal of regiments, and a power to draw on the treaſury for any ſum of money.

With reſpect to the ſtate and diſpoſition of affairs in this part of the World, what is reported among you, ought to have very little credit given to it; but you may rely on the truth of the account I now ſend you. At the congreſs of Alexandria, which is on the borders of Virginia, where general Shirley, and the governors of the other provinces of New York, Pennſylvania, and Maryland, were ordered to meet general Braddock, to concert the plan of operations for the campaign, it was reſolved to attack the French in all quarters.

General Braddock, with two thouſand five hundred men, commands at the back of Virginia, and, it is preſumed, he is now at the Ohio. General Shirley, with his own and ſir William Pepperell's regiment, and one thouſand men granted by this province and the Jerſies, is to command at Niagara. Col. Johnſon, a nephew of the late ſir Peter Warren (a gentleman of conſiderable intereſt among the Mohawks) is to command againſt Crown Point, with between four and five thouſand men, raiſed by the ſeveral provinces in the following proportions: Maſſachuſetts 1500, New Hampſhire 500, Rhode Iſland 300, Connecticut 1000, New-York 800, Jerſies 500, beſides two caſtles or tribes of Indians which conſiſts of 150 or 200 men each. Col. Monckton is gone from hence with two thouſand men, about three weeks ago, to diſlodge the French from their ſettlement at Chicanectu, on the back of Nova Scotia. He is to be joined at Annapolis Royal by a detachment of Lawrence's regiment of 500 men and a Train.

Various are the opinions in regard to our ſucceſs; ſome think we ſhall meet with no oppoſition, as the French cannot withſtand us in all quarters; with a greater force at ſea, ſay they, it is true, the French cannot make head againſt us in all quarters; but it is natural to ſuppoſe, in ſuch a juncture, that they will abandon poſts of little conſequence, to ſecure thoſe that are of the greateſt; and, conſequently will bend all their force to maintain the paſs of Niagara, which is the key to all the French ſettlements on the back of us, and cuts off the communication between the rivers St. Lawrence and Miſſiſippi; and were we maſters of it, we ſhould ſoon be in poſſeſſion of the whole of the furr trade.

I ſhall from time to time, tranſmit you copies of my journal of the enſuing campaign.

And am, &c.

P. S. We have two large row gallies building at Oſwego, on Lake Ontario.

BOSTON, July 21.

WE have advice from Nova-Scotia, That on the 17th of laſt month, Col. Winſlow, with 500 men, took poſſeſſion of fort Gaſpereau, ſituate on the bay of Verte, about 15 miles [illegible] from the Engliſh camp. That on the 19th he examined the fort, and found it 80 feet ſquare, with four block-houſes, one on each angle, and in miſerable order, 8 cannon and 2 ſwivels, the building very bad within, as well as the water without: The ſtore conſiſts of 700 lb. of powder, a large quantity of cannon ſhot, ſome claret, 280 barrels of pork, and 8 hogſheads of molaſſes, but no bread nor butter. In reconnoitring the country thereabouts three days, they found it barren, and but little fiſh in the bay. At the bay of Verte is a village of about 25 houſes, a chapel, and a prieſt's houſe well finiſhed; and that the inhabitants ſeemed to live in a better form, and more after the Engliſh manner than any in that province, and have an open communication with the iſle of St. John's, and the inhabitants of Cape-Breton; whom they furniſh with lumber, Indian goods, &c. from whom they receive all the conveniences of life in return. That they were cleaning the fort, by the French people, and were about to repair it.

By a letter from Fort Cumberland camp, at Chegnecto, dated the 3d inſtant, we have the following authentic intelligence, viz. That upon Capt. Roſs's appearing before St. John's, with the ſhips under his command, and ſending his boats to reconnoitre, (from whence he was to ſend word to the commanding officer of the troops, whether or no the French had any ſhips of war there) the officer commanding in the fort immediately let fire to all the magazines and houſes in the fort; burſt all their cannon, and deſtroyed every thing in and around it. That there were about 200 Indians, who all ſeem'd inclined to peace, and offered to ſend four of their chiefs for that purpoſe. The French retired up the rivers, and by what can be learnt are gone to Canada. That the commanding officer has in poſſeſſion one chief, and another of their chief's ſons, whom they had been to fetch before this happened, he therefore ſent a perſon up them to know whether they were for peace or war; the laſt of which they readily preferred.

Extract of a letter from Fort Lawrence, of the ſame date as the above.

You are to obſerve that the land carriage from Albany to Schenectady, is occaſioned by a river full of water, as are all the reſt, I mean the carrying-places:—at theſe places we are obliged to draw our battoes over land.

THURSDAY August 28th, 1755.

"YOU will be glad to hear, that the French have been diſpoſſeſſed of all Nova-Scotia, which has given us the trouble of a fine campaign. Upon the appearance of Capt. Roſs, with the ſquadron of men of war, they fled from the fort, burſt their cannon, broke their ſmall arms, and marched off to Canada, leaving the Indians to ſhift for themſelves. Capt. Rous landed, and was followed by the black regiment, who behaved in ſome reſpects like men, with the Engliſh and accordingly four of their caſtle went on board: Whether he ſent them to Halifax is not certainly known. We have two chaſe here at fort Cumberland, who came up from St. John's to pilot us down; and we were juſt going to embark 1500 men to reduce that place (the ſtores and proviſions being on board the tranſports) when the above account arrived, which was yeſterday. I think providence has been remarkably favourable to us, the French being now entirely diſpoſſeſſed of Nova-Scotia, with the loſs of only four men, (and three of them blowed up in this fort). We have a proſpect of ſecuring the St. John's Indians entirely over to our intereſt. All the inhabitants in this river are diſarmed and kept tightly to work. I wiſh they were exchanged for ſo many good New-England huſband-men, who would improve the lands hereabouts, for they are well worth it. Our ſucceſs in theſe parts, as it muſt give you great ſatisfaction in New-England; I doubt not it will ſpirit up the troops at the Southward; and I hope, are happy omens of the downfall of the intereſt of the French in North-America. You ſee there is nothing like cutting off the head; how ſoon it caught a cafe, the lines written upon the ſurrender of Beauſejour, all their mighty forts and poſſeſſions came to nothing. However, we muſt not boaſt too much; we have, 'tis true made a good beginning, and I hope the end will correſpond therewith."

WILLIAMSBURG, July 30.

THIS afternoon an expreſs arrived in town from Col. Innis, which confirms the diſagreeable news of the defeat of our forces under the command of general Braddock. His honour the governor being at Hampton, a meſſenger was immediately diſpatched thither with his letters; ſo that all we know of this misfortune, we gather from private letters in town, from ſome of the officers who retreated to fort Cumberland.

Here the Virginia Printer inſerts Capt. Stewart's Letter as publiſhed in the laſt [illegible] and then goes on)

Another letter agrees exactly with the above, and ſays further, we had 63 officers killed, and 39 wounded; 300 private men killed and taken, and 350 wounded; which account agrees exactly with the following liſt of the killed and wounded, tranſmitted to us from another hand.

Old Dodsley's Division was last 6 Miles short from Capital Bridgetown, and not to myself as 40. For he was Lieutenant invited to marched.

Newport, August 8. Last night an express arrived here from Virginia to his excellency the governor, with dispatches from governor Dinwiddie; by whom came letters to several gentlemen here, confirming the defeat at the Ohio, agreable to the above account from Williamsburg. The general assembly are appointed to meet at Williamsburg the 6th instant, a proclamation having been issued for that purpose.

PARIS, May 12.

MONSIEUR de Machault, minister of state for the department of the marine, has received an express from Brest, with advice that the fleet, after being obliged to put back several times on account of contrary winds, actually sailed in the night of the 5th instant; and that the master of a ship which accompanied it to a certain latitude is returned, and says, that he left the fleet above 100 leagues distant from the coast, continuing its course with a very fair wind.

May 15. It is the opinion of several people, that the Brest fleet will divide off Cape Finisterre, and that one part of it only will convoy the transports to Canada, and the rest will stay and cruize upon the coasts of Spain and Portugal. We learn from Bretany, that several more men of war are ready to put to sea from the ports of that province. The orders given some time ago for forming a camp near Saarlouis, are countermanded, and it is resolved that it shall assemble in September at Richemont upon the Moselle.

Vienna, May 10. Since the arrival of the [illegible] at Hildesheim, it is generally said that [illegible] has been brought upon the carpet, a courier having been dispatched to Vienna, and another to the Netherlands. The [illegible] of Hesse, whose troops are expected here [illegible] to be stationed there, [illegible] and [illegible] are to remain in Westphalia. The [illegible] accommodation of the Duke of Holstein-Gottorp with Russia is again talked of. [illegible] foreign troops are [illegible] purpose.

Hanover, May 23. Our letters from [illegible] say, that the Austrian troops have [illegible] and [illegible] the [illegible] of Hesse, [illegible] and [illegible] to be stationed there. [illegible] Prussian troops will [illegible] about [illegible] the accommodation of the [illegible] Holstein-Gottorp with Russia is again talked of. [illegible] foreign troops are [illegible] purpose.

Hanover, May 23. Our letters from [illegible] say, that the Austrian troops have [illegible]

[illegible] of so many ships in the Mediterranean, that they dare not appear on the other side of the straights of Gibraltar.

A deputation of the city of Amsterdam has arrived here this week at the prince's regent's, whilst the Stadtholder was exercising a company of young gentlemen of his own age, the prince ordered them to withdraw till the gentlemen deputies were gone; and being asked his reason for this, he replied, that he was afraid in their fury to reduce the army, they might think of disbanding his company.

Breslau, May 5. All our accounts concerning the Brest fleet agree, that it was out the 30th ult. It is pretended that M. de M'Namara, who has the command of this fleet, will only escort a part of it as far as off the Azores islands, and that he will afterwards return with the rest to the coast of France.

Vienna, May 20. The lords justices in council, have ordered the parliament, which stands prorogued to tuesday the 23th instant, should be further prorogued to tuesday the 27th of July next.

May 22. According to very authentic accounts from Syracuse, there has happened a most dreadful eruption at Mount Aetna. It began in the middle of the night of the 9th of March, by throwing up fire and smoke for some time, then followed a most dreadful shower of stones, each of them three pounds weight, and some bigger; and after this was over it continued to ruin black sand all the next day. On the 10th in the afternoon a small stream issued from the side of the mountain, into which a country fellow having dipp'd his fingers, had them scalded to the bone for his pains. In the evening there broke out a current of liquid fire; and the next day, at about a mile's distance, a river of boiling water, which has already extended above two miles.

A very odd affair has lately happened at Montpellier. A priest, in obedience to the commands of the parliament of Thoulouse, and surrounded by their tipstaves and other officers, going to administer the sacrament to a lady to whom it had been refused by the parish priest, it occasioned an insurrection, and if the commandant had not drawn out his garrison, the women of the place armed with knives for that purpose, would have put to death the poor lady and priest.

We learn from Hanover, that the king is in perfect health; that the duke of Brunswic Wolfenbuttel is expected there; that a marriage and a grand alliance are the common topics of discourse; and that a foreign influence in Germany visibly declines.

By a private letter from Amsterdam we are told, that the merchants are extremely alarmed at the bad news they have received from the Mediterranean, where the Algerines have taken above twenty of their ships, richly laden; upon which they addressed themselves to the states general, to desire that a strong squadron may sail immediately for the protection of their commerce in the Levant.

The French are thought desirous of obliging us to strike the first blow, in order that they may claim the benefit of their treaties with Spain, which stipulate assistance in case France is attacked. But has not the attack been made already in America?

The week before last the right hon. the earl and countess of Northesk arrived in Scotland. His lordship, on account of his bad state of health has resigned the command of the Oxford man of war, and is succeeded by Capt. Stevens.

On tuesday fortnight there was the hottest press for seamen at Shields, and Newcastle, that has been there since the warrants were granted, several hundreds being taken, and no regard paid to protections.

The lords of the admiralty have appointed his majesty's ship the Sphinx, to carry Sir Charles Hardy to his government of New-York.

Letter from Portsmouth dated May 19.

On saturday his majesty's ship Lyme arrived at Spithead, and brings advice that she had been three days in company with the French fleet, which by the course it was apparent to be gone to the westward of the Western Islands, that it consisted of 29 sail, of which 18 were of the line, and appeared to be very full of men. By the colours they showed, there was one admiral and two commodores.

Bristol, May 24. The press for seamen to man his majesty's fleet, is now pretty well over, the gangs, constables, informers, &c. having cleared the town almost to a man.

London, May 27. According to private advices from Brest, the French fleet, which got out to sea the 3d instant, must certainly be bound to North America; because several officers, belonging to the battalions embarked on board the fleet, were sent off, disguised like common passengers, five or six weeks before, in a vessel freighted as for a trading voyage to Canada. They were then missed in the land forces; but no body knew, till after the fleet sailed, that they had been dispatched away before, to get things in readiness against the arrival of the fleet, as one may reasonably suppose.

We hear that the hon. Henry Greenville, Esq; has resigned the government of Barbadoes, but who is to succeed him we don't hear.

There are great numbers of tickets forfeited by the subscribers neglecting to make the second payment at the bank, according to act of parliament, which says that all former payments shall be forfeited to the use of his majesty for such neglect.

Letter from Portsmouth, dated May 21.

The four ships from Plymouth brought 600 men above their compliment, who were distributed among the fleet.

On monday afternoon arrived at Spithead from the Downs, his majesty's ship Rochester. The Essex tender arrived here that evening from Newcastle, and brought 130 men for his majesty's service, and the same evening 120 marines came in.

Yesterday sailed out of the harbour to Spithead, his majesty's ship Penzance. In the harbour there are several ships of force almost ready to sail. Remain at Spithead 20 ships of the line of battle.
